AND DEMAND.

CAPTAIN DIMMOCK'S SPEECH

He Eulogizes the Richmond Soldier-Comrade Richardson Accepts the Gift.

A large audience filled Lee Camp Hall last night to hear the speeches incident to the presentation to the camp of a statue of General John R. Cooke, work being the gift of Mr. Frederick Moynihan, artist and sculptor, Besides the veterans a number of ludies were present. The presentation was made in a chaste speech by Captain M. J. Dimmock, and the gift was accepted on the part of the camp by Comrade David C. Richardson in an extemporaneous speech. which was, however, a fine tribute to General Cooke. Brief speeches were made by Dr. George Ross and Major J. W. Pegram, each of whom commended General Cooke as worthy of all admiration. and related incidents illustrative of his valor, modesty and services to his Stateand country. The entire programme lasted less than an hour.

request of Mr. Frederick Moynthan, the comrade, General John R. Cooke. A. comrade, General John R. Cooke. A short time after General Cooke's death in this city, a few of his friends and admirers made an effort to erect a statue. It is a satisfied the status of this spiencial soldier. This model was prepared and accepted, but the effort to put it in more enduring material has remained unaccomplished, though it is still the hope that the purpose will yet meet with success."

After a delightful speech, Captain Dimmock said;

"And now, comrades, my very pleasant camp as its commander for several terms and his spiendid work in the establishment of the Lee Camp Soldiers' Home, in which he had a prominent, though modest, part, Mr. Richardson's ristinate of the man and soldier received the commendation of his commandes.

the commendation of his comrades.
Dr. George Ross addressed the camp, relating some personal reminiscences of of him as a man and as a soldier.
Of his as a man and as a soldier.
Major Pegram followed with a brief, but cloquent, tribute. He declared that General Cooke was one of his dearest friends. Lee Camp, said he, owes him more than it owes any other man. He spoke of the early history of the camp and the selection of General Cooke as its commander. When he was elected absolutely without an effort, he appeared to be inaugurated and assumed his duto be inaugurated and assumed his du-

ANNOUNCEMENT.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

(BY HARRY TUCKER.)

1 A man went up to Leo Wise at the Academy box-office and said: 'Have you some tickets to the gallery?'
'Yes. "Yes."

"Give me twice."

He got two tickets and tried to go up to the gallery on the fire escape, but the lower part was turned up. He then returned to Mr. Wise.

"You'd be-ter give me seats to the balcony; the gallery is full and they have drawn up the steps."

He got them,

Chist is the one who sends you with a message.

Do our home missionaries pray for the work before us—for our leaders upon whom so much depends?

What wonders have been wrought by prayers! What possibilities are before us if we look to the Great Founta, Head "from whom all blessings flow". At this writing our Woman's Board of Home Missions is in session in Karsas City.

Let us pray that the work projected will be attended with Got's richest blessings, and that this year may be the greatest in the history of the Home Mission Society.

When we think of what work it has done we know there are wonderful achievements ahead of the native minister in Cuba. Eighty-one per cent were converted in the Usited States and 50 per cent. of these were converted in our own Southern Church. Sisil we not add our little quots to the great work of saving little quots
